CM hits back at AAP on Parrikar vision statement

Sawant also said that those who believe in BJP, to join the party in large numbers.

While addressing party workers in Panim on Sunday, Sisodia had also claimed that those who are in BJP and believed in Parrikar's ideology are "insulted", "humiliated" and "sidelined" by the BJP.

By Collector holds hearings on land acquisitions

his team along with Goa Foundation led by Dr Claude Alvares represented the villagers and argued their case before the competent authority that the land acquisition notification had lapsed quoting various Sections of the Railway and Other Applicable Acts.

The Railway authority representatives, who were present, could not give a satisfactory answer as this was to be the final hearing and disposal of the case and hence the Deputy Collector granted the Railways additional time to present their case and have filed the next hearing on April 29.

Goencho Ekant also stated that sadly the government is the biggest violator of the law and the Revenue Minister should act on the officers, who are acquiring our land without following legal procedures.

AAP rules out forming any alliance

He claimed now that everyone is seeing the progressive and honest politics of AAP in Goa. Even people of other parties want to join AAP. "These are the people who want to support honest politics, who want to bring change in Goa and where everyone could not be accommodated inside the chosen venue halls," the team points out.

Musicians play in tune with coastal plan protestors

and consider this plan by working closely with each other," says the team while concurring with Saisio and Nerrica about the video's aim.

"Our intention of making this video is to join hands with all Goans who are appealing to the government to have the CZMP reviewed and approved at panchayat levels. This will ensure that the coastal zone management plan is specific, accurate, and effective. We are not trying to create a new effort, but we want to join hands with every Goan who wants to raise awareness on the need for a more transparent, thorough, collaborative Coastal Zone Management plan. The people of Goa are asking for the CZMP to be reviewed and approved at each panchayat and not the district as has been done currently," Saisio adds.

"The CZMP states that it needs to be approved in consultation with the public, however, this was not possible in the recently held public hearing due to COVID measures and where everyone could not be accommodated inside the chosen venue halls," the team points out.

"Secondly the CZMP's first drafts are full of errors and inaccuracies and the reason to consult with the public to bring accuracy becomes even more important," adds Nerrica.

The team adds that the video is also dedicated to Goa environment activists like Claude Alvares (Goa Foundation Director) who has given three decades of his life fighting for Goa's environment.

The team also refers to an interview given by Alvares that was published in a recent Herald Review edition in which he described 'severe problems emerging with these (individual and overall) Coastal Zone Management Plans'.

Coming to the song, it has already become a conversation starter amongst the people given that the musicians who are performing in it, have a fan following of their own.

The team thanked all those who were involved and who supported it in all the aspects of the project. The song will be released this Saturday, April 17.

CCMC to float tender for sopo, garbage...

cannot be given directly to any private party for any purpose including its maintenance therefore the council has decided to give it after auction," said Chief Officer Ajay Gaude.

It may be recalled that due to lack of quorum, the first special meeting of newly elected councillors of CMC which was convened on April 7 was cancelled as only seven councillors attended.

Councillor Vishwas Pando Sawant told Herald that they have not moved a fresh no-confidence motion but had made a separate letter to DMA on the status of their earlier Motion after receiving the communication from Presiding Officer regarding the election of chairperson and vice-chairperson. In response the DMA has issued notices and directed CCMC to decide on the No Confidence Motion on April 16.

The meeting was attended by seven councillors Pradip Kushali Naik (Postnemoli), Sushant Rohidas Naik (Madhalegal), Yolanda Pereira (Vodlenell), Clementina Fernandes (Moratlem), Mangaladas Arjun Ghadi (Gladhwada-Kakoda) and Aparna Vitthola Prabhu Desai (Sastnamoddi) and Chairperson Balkrishna (Pinty) Uttam Sinal Hodarkar.

Counselling is anchor of support

Psychosocial support is yet another dimension of services that the Goa government implemented to alleviate the emotional impact on COVID-19 patients of South Goa private hospitals and their families. The government utilised the services of the counsellors of South Goa colleges through the Directorate of Higher Education and our first-hand experience was that it was a wise decision.

The stress and anxiety one feels when they or a family member tests positive is immense. Overwhelming emotions can aggravate existing physiological conditions. The tele-counselling services provided to patients and families that required assistance in addressing their psychosocial needs enhanced their spirit of resilience. The 13 counsellors from South Goa colleges providing tele-counselling worked with complete dedication to deliver the much required support effectively. By providing a non-judgemental safe space, a patient, listening ear and implementing required interventions, they were able to guide people in various circumstances through their guilt, fear, anxiety, grief and trauma associated with COVID-19. The efficacy of their counselling Services could be gauged from the words of gratitude received from patients and their family members.

This Goa's daughter has taught all Goans to take our future in our own hands

Former State and Lusofonia Games volleyball player takes to professional plumbing for economic self-reliance; Herald salutes her, as an inspiration

It's a story of sheer grit. And spirit. A spirit that comes from a sports person who has played Nationals for Goa and represented the nation in the Lusofonia Games in volleyball. Christie Dias did win games for her State and country but her real victory lies in how she played the game of her life. She is not only a huge inspiration for the youth of Goa but her story is also a reflection of how little the state does to empower

CHRISTIE DIAS - The volleyball star who is a smashing hit

- Panjim-based daughter of a goods carrier driver
- Played for Goa in the Nationals and Lusofonia Games
- Realised opportunities and employment as a sports person were limited
- Learnt plumbing from her tenant and decided to use her acquired skills as her lifetime profession medium to big projects like new constructions or restorations. She soon learnt on the job and as a quick learner became very adept.

Soon the business grew and she is now equipped, with a team to handle work across Goa. Friendly, warm, trustworthy and very skilful, she is not just on the road to stability, but totally self-reliant.

But why didn't she, like others, move to the UK and work, get married and raise a family. Her answer was touching: "Two of my sisters got married and moved to the UK. I wanted to stay back and look after my parents since I didn't young people. Realising that her volleyball career would have an uncertain future and no guarantees of jobs and security, Christie decided to acquire skills that would make her self-reliant. And not have to look for government jobs or 'take favours or use influence'. But how did plumbing happen? "Even I don't know the answer". She told Herald. "Perhaps it was God who decided this." Reflecting on her journey she said, "I had a tenant who was a good plumber. I asked him to show me his work and then watched him closely when he did plumbing jobs." These would include have a brother. And I wanted to have my own business and not depend on or work for anybody."

Without quite realising the enormity of her achievements, Christie has done the following

- (1) Defeated gender barriers and myths that plumbing is a man's job.
- (2) Bucked the easy path of waiting for government jobs, and decide to acquire skills on her own.
- (3) Is totally self-reliant and sufficient and supports herself and contributes to the family income.
- (4) Has not followed the path of so many Goan youth who go abroad and work and/or get married and live abroad.
- (5) Most importantly, she has shown what dignity of labour is all about.

This volleyball athlete is a star because she has cleared the net of barriers that many either don't or simply step away and take the easiest course

BUT HER HEROIC STORY IS ALSO A STORY ABOUT HOW LITTLE OUR GOVERNMENTS HAVE CARED TO EMPOWER THE YOUTH

All over the world, we see dignity of labour and respect given to all professions where a lorry driver and truck company owner can bond over an after-work beer. And women have far greater opportunities. As gas station attendants, bus and lorry drivers, mechanics and so on. In so many towns and cities, there is a large and dignified workforce which would be considered 'passee' in India.

In Goa, the bright minds, the workforce and those with skills are all moving out.

ON BEACHES MIGRANTS SELL NON-GOAN WARES WHILE NO ONE SELLS GOAN HANDICRAFTS AND INSTRUMENTS TO TOURISTS

The Goans have left. On the beaches, most 'Goan' shacks don't have Goan food, Goan waiters or even Goan owners. Migrants promising massages and more, sell cheap wares that are not remotely Goan, at exorbitant prices.

Our beaches can easily have stalls, shops, cafe's all with a Goan touch, with Goan goods, handicrafts etc for sale. This would make local Goans self-reliant, strong, economically powerful and not dependent on the government.

And when you attain this level of economic self-sufficiency, no politician can ever entice you with money, forget actually giving you a bribe for your vote.

Government's have systematically stopped activities that would showcase traditions and help those with skills earn

There is a true and beautiful belief that when you promote culture and tradition and activities that go with it, civilization can never get poor. Goa was always a shining example of that. Perhaps not any longer. From Carnivals to Shigmos to street festivals, to music on the streets played by local street musicians, to festivals like the Fountainhas Festival, each was not just a celebration of traditions, but of opportunities for people to earn and live off their traditional skills.

During these street festivals, there would be food stalls, music bands would play, and homes would become venues of music shows, art exhibitions or food sales. And everyone earned from joyous contributions of people, fellow Goans and good tourists who saw the real Goa, not a Goa where a migrant massages them on the beach.

These days, do we get our traditional food and drinks? Can you get toddy anywhere? Won't a tourist be willing to pay Rs 200 or more for a glass of toddy? And won't that money help in sustaining the almost extinct community of toddy tappers who of course need much more support to keep their skill and profession alive?

Skills have indeed been killed.

So many traditions have been finished. So many skills have become extinct. Do we see Goan weavers and their beautiful work anymore, like saree work? Do we see musical instrument makers, do we see those who make handicrafts? These skills have been killed by the system that looks at only two things. Means to make money and put it in the pockets of the powerful.

Earlier Goans had opportunities, now they are victims of fixing.

And yes, for these festivals, work and contracts were given to locals to fix the lighting, the sounds or paint the sidewalks or signages. No Panjim-based non-Goan contractor would corner all of this and give some peanuts to locals to carry out their sub-contracted jobs out as it happens now. Everything is fixed. That is why young Goans who cannot go abroad are desperate for even low paying clerical government jobs.

It is now that you will understand why Christie Dias and young people like her need to be saluted. She has, especially as a woman beating the system, taught every Goan youngster that there is an alternative. There is a way to tell those who rule the system, that there are people who will develop skills and be entrepreneurs without any government slogan or scheme.

Above all she has told the system exactly this: "Try and give me a dark tunnel and I will light it with my own candle of opportunity and self-reliance".
